MR. EMBRY DIES

After Lingering Illness--Was Sixty-Seven Years Of Age. Had Many Friends Here.

Wm. Embry died last Wednesday morning and the funeral was held from their apartment in the Hannan House on Chestnut street. Mr. Embry's death was caused from dropsy. He had been ill a long time. Just his wife and a step-daughter, Miss Minnie Snyder, survive him. Mr. Embry was a store cutter by trade and had lived here about seventeen years.

He was well-liked in church and business circles of this city.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Farmer, pastor of the Baptist church, of which the deceased was a member.

Woodrow Wilson is ### Coming to Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 19.—Dr. Woodrow Wilson, Governor-elect of New Jersey, has written to the Rev. Dr. Jesse R. Ziegler that he will be in Frankfort to attend the conference of governors. Dr. Ziegler said he will be his guest while he is in Frankfort. The attendance at the conference promises to be good. The fact that the meeting of the Lakes to the Gulf Deep Waterways Association will be held in St. Louis the latter part of next week, just before the conference begins here, leads the local committees to believe that many Governors from Western States will come to Kentucky. Some fifteen Governors will attend the meeting in St. Louis next Friday and Saturday and most of them will come to Louisville on Sunday and to Frankfort Monday for the conference.

He Missed the Eclipse.

Jim Bivens, a Cloverport citizen, rested quietly in the Havesville jail Wednesday night, the beauties of the moon eclipse being lost to him through a still fuller moon which he took on at Cannelton. On a modest plea of guilty he was fined $10 and the costs the next morning, he being the first victim caught by the local courts for the new law making it a penalty for drunkenness on a train or about the depot. The law was passed at the last session of the Legislature.—Hancock Clarion.

Mrs. Roff Improving.

Mrs. Wave Roff, who has been critically ill for several weeks, is somewhat improved, and her many friends are delighted to know she is being relieved of intense suffering. She has the services of Miss Chesnut, the trained nurse, and great improvement is expected in her condition.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to sincerely thank our neighbors and friends for their kindness during our recent and bereavement. Mrs. Embry and Daughter.

Miss Dutschke Entertains.

Such a feast for young people has never been spread as was given at the home of Mr. Julius Dutschke in honor of his daughter, Miss Ida Dutschke, Sunday. Turkey, chicken, five kinds of cake and ice cream in abundance, with lots of other good things to eat, were served.

The guests were: Prof. McCov, Dwight Randall, Misses Claudia, Carrie Pace, Ella Smith and Mr. Hendry of Lodi.

M. F. SHARP

President, M. F. Sharp, Kentucky, re-elected; vice president, J. M. Woods, Ohio, director; C. W. Pierson, North Dakota; H. G. Tarkenton, Wisconsin, and Louis Lockhart, Indiana. The secretary-treasurer will be elected by the directors, who will meet after the convention adjourns.

FROM BISHOP QUAYLE

The Finding For Any Man To Do, Thing Himself Anywhere Else, Is To Pack His Grip And Come To America.

The Christian cause in America was the topic of the Methodist preachers' meeting yesterday, and the chief speaker was Bishop Quayle, who lives, when at home, which he said was not often, in Oklahoma. The Bishop said he was a man born.

"Presiding at a recent conference out West," said he, "one leader was a German, another was a Dane, a third was a Frenchman and a fourth was an Irishman, and I said that having so much good seed from so many places we ought to be able to take bread enough for the nations, good Christlike, honest wheat bread."

"In spite of all its badness, America has become a world spiritual power," observed the Bishop, and then he added: "We are not in the business of making Methodists, desirable products as they are. We are making Americans, and you can't make a really valuable American unless you make him a Christian man. Methodism is merely the workshop."

So great was the enthusiasm and so vast the crowd that the conclusion was the singing of "America." The Oklahoma Bishop, a breeze from the West, kept the company in a roar twenty of the twenty-five minutes he held the platform.

"Christians must take America in hand and keep it from going to the devil," he said. "When they do so, then we must take the whole world, America included, to Christ. Nobody is to blame for having been born in the island of Man, in Germany, in Ireland, but the thing for any man to do, finding himself there, is to pack his grip and come to America."

"Thomas Jefferson did not write the Declaration of Independence. It is a mistake to say he did. Jesus Christ did it. I preached to many times yesterday I cannot remember all the places or all I said. But wherever I preach, whether in New York or New Mexico, I find just folks. New Yorkers ought to know more style and use more big words than folks do out West, but they ought to quit fooling around about our State and our city and their problems and begin to look with America. We ought not to talk Japanese even if we were born in Japan. We ought to see if we were born in Spain, but all of us, the whole kit, ought to learn to speak Americanese. The sooner Greeks learn American and speak it the sooner Hungarians do the same, the better for them and for us."

"What a race we are making! I'd like to live 500 years to see what it will do. Wouldn't it be fun to be mixed up in such a fracas?"

Raised To One Hundred

The practice of writing on newspapers and packages—imparting some information to relatives and friends on papers and parcels mailed them—has become so common with thoughtless and ignorant people that the $10 penalty of the post has been made $100 by the postal department and hereafter offenders will have to stand arrest and trial.

May Lose Both Eyes

As Result Of Accident. Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 15.—W. S. Guernsey, of Louisville's conductor on the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis Railroad, was accidentally shot, by Louis Murphy while hunting in Daviess county this afternoon, and as a result will probably lose the sight of both eyes. Guernsey was standing in front of Murphy when the latter fired at a covey of birds. The shot struck Guernsey in the face. He was brought to Owensboro and will be taken to Louisville in the morning, where an operation will be performed.

The Century in 1911.

The Century is to publish in 1911 a series of papers on "The Wives of the Caesars," by Guglielmo Ferrero, probably the most distinguished figure in historical writing in the world today. The series will begin with Livia, wife of Augustus; and all will treat of women who were related to the politics and social life of the age, and who took part in the strife in Rome between the old Patrician and the Oriental civilization.

HERNDON-WALLER

Wedding Carried Out In Beautiful Appointments—Large Number Of Guests Present—Church Wedding.

Irvine, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—A large and fashionable audience filled the Irvington Baptist church to witness the marriage of Miss Evelyn Brashear Herndon and Mr. John Trice Waller, which was solemnized at 10 o'clock on Wednesday morning and was one of the most beautiful and brilliant weddings of the season.

The church was tastefully decorated, quantities of palms, potted plants and honey suckles were grouped about the pulpit and choir platform and on the organ were large clusters of yellow chrysanthemums. The mandolin club were seated by a screen of green and potted plants. The Rev. J. T. Lewis was the officiating clergyman. Mrs. Joo. R. Winger, organist of the church, played the wedding music and the selections were particularly beautiful. She was assisted by the mandolin club and the sextet which composed the following: Miss Ellen Manford, Mrs. L. B. Moremen, Miss Virginia Calloway and Mrs. W. J. Piggett. Mr. D. C. Heron and Mr. W. J. Piggett. In the bride procession the Shirts Waist Girls came first and they were: Misses Mary Wether, Nannie McGeehee, Claire Jolly, Mabel McGlothlin, Willa Drury, Reba Lewis, Eva McGlothlin and Nellie Smith; after which the maid of honor, Miss May Tydings and best man, Mr. Walter Trice preceded the bride and groom.

The ushers were Mr. Herschel Kirk and Mr. David Herndon. The only other attendants were the ribbon children, who were charming in their suits of white. Miss Helen Board and Master Fairleigh Herndon. Mr. and Mrs. Waller left at once for Hopkinsville, where they will be with their mother until the first of year, when they will go to housekeeping on Virginia Ave.

BANDY COURT

Added to Irvington—One Hundred Lots Sold—Jas. S. Younger Draws Free Lot—Moorman and Dickerson Get Cash Prizes.

Irvington, Ky., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—The second lot sale which has been held in our town within the past month was a success both in attendance and in selling of the lots.

The Hardinsburg band boys were present and gave us the latest music. The band led the way and a crowd of people estimated at 1,000, followed to the Bandy Court, where the sale began.

One hundred lots were sold, averaging about $50 per lot. The entire sale was conducted just as advertised. The first cash prize of $5 was drawn by Lewis Bennett Moorman and Mr. Dickerson, of Custer.

The second cash prize of $2.50 was drawn by Miss Eva McGlothlin, and Jim Younger, of Cloverport, was the lucky winner of the free lot.

Auctioneers: J. L. Engleheart, of Elizabethtown; Chas. Payne, of Owensboro, and D. W. Henry, blew their trumpets in the same old way.

The crowd dispersed well satisfied with the sale, and complimented Moorman & Aker in the way things were carried on.

A Bird.

A certain local real estate man has never been intoxicated nor in a state of near-puff-blowing, but he has on stock a fund of anecdotes dealing with the vagaries of snakes.

One of these has to do with two good fellows who went on a spree which terminated in their apartment where one of them speedily relapsed into a state of somnolence. While he was in this condition his wagging friend proceeded to lather his face liberally with glue. The practical joker then opened a feather-tick and shook the downy contents over the physiognomy of his sleeping friend. Having done this he turned up the gas in the room and himself went to sleep. A few hours later, the first sleeper awakened in a state of near-suffocation and sat

MRS. WHEELER

Dies Saturday at Garfield—Funeral Held at Rome Sunday—Was Nearly 90 Years Old.

Mrs. Rhoda Wheeler died of heart failure and complication of diseases Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ramon Norton, of Garfield. She was past eighty-seven years of age, and was a remarkable woman. She was born in Perry county in 1823. During the last twelve years she lived with her daughter. Mrs. Wheeler was a Baptist but was reared by Methodist parents.

She leaves five children: J. J. Wheeler, North Dakota; J. C. Wheeler, Santa Fe, New Mexico; Mrs. Mattie DeVitt, Fort Calhoun, North Dakota; Dr. F. R. Wheeler, Manford, Okla.; and Mrs. Louise Norton, Garfield. Besides her own children she is survived by twenty-five grandchildren and twelve great-grandchildren.

The funeral and interment took place at Rome, Ind., Sunday. It was attended by Mrs. Thursa Hall, Miss Mollie Gibson, Miss Annie Haynes, Iva Haynes, Lon Dutschke, Arthur Haynes, Finis Johnson, Levi Norton, Dudley Haynes, James Crist and Eugene Beauchamp, Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Norton.

With a shriek of horror he buried his face in his arms and collapsed into the bed covering. "In h—land a bird," he shouted in a agonized tone, "in h—land a bird."—"All Around the Town" Louisville Times.

Work On The Bridge.

The work on the bridge is progressing nicely. One tube is already set and concreted, the other is being put in and in a few days will be completed. It's a big job filling one of these tubes. It takes 55 loads of gravel and 200 sacks of cement.

New Rabbit Law.

Much misapprehension as to the game law passed by the last Legislature has arisen in this county and probably in many other counties, especially as to setting traps and snares for rabbits and other game. The act that passed was very brief and is as follows:

"That it shall be unlawful for any one to set a steel trap, deadfall or snare or to loose or hunt with a ferret upon the premises or property of another without first securing the written consent of the owner of the premises or property, and any one thus offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $5 or more than $25."

Having in possession game caught, or set out in Section 1, shall be prima facie evidence of guilt as herein provided."

BIG SPRING.

Rev. Scott will preach at the Baptist church Saturday at 11 a. m., and Sunday at 3 p. m.

We regret that the stock law was not voted on in this precinct at the last election. We are glad that Hardin and Meade have taken the vote and it passed.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Drury, of Bevellyville, passed through town Saturday enroute home. They had been up in Hardin county for several days. They attended the sale Mr. Kerfoot near St. John.

Miss Jessie Leever, of Irvington, took dinner at the hotel Friday.

M. G. Chayne, of Gulfport, Miss., representing the Gold Medal flour, called on the merchants Friday.

LOWER PRICES

OF MEATS.

Dr. Wiley Says It's Merely a Deliberate Manipulation of the Market.

Washington, Nov. 16. Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, pure food expert of the Department of Agriculture, is pessimistic about the outlook for lower prices in food supplies. Said he today when questioned in regard to the present fall in the wholesale quotations of beef and other meats:

"The interests which manipulated the prices upward have temporarily released their hold on our throats for the purpose of getting a fresh grip. This so-called reduction in price of meats is merely a deliberate manipulation of the market, just as the increase in prices was unjust, unreasonably and uncalled for by conditions prevailing throughout the country. The prices were fictitious when they reached the top notch because they were forced to that high level arbitrarily by the interests. The alleged reduction also is fictitious because it is not a reduction in fact, but mere market manipulation deliberately planned to meet the selfish ends of the interests who have dominated the markets for years."

"If you do not believe that the so-called reduction is fictitious go into the markets and try to buy a pound of beef. Developments will show that the interests are after some one. There may be some independent movement they hope to drive from cover or take into camp. The hands of the interests at our throats simply got tired of holding their own. They have relaxed their holding temporarily so that they may get a better and fresher grip."

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson had this to say in regard to the announced reductions by the packers:

"The farmer with cattle on his hands must pay $5 a ton for his hay instead of $30, the price of a year ago, and rather than do this he is sending his cattle to market. This has caused a flood of cattle in the Chicago market and accounts for the sudden tumble in prices. This tumble is abnormal and will not be permanent. However, a plentiful corn crop and plenty of grain will enable the farmer to feed freely and we should get a lower level of prices. Lower prices are certain to come provided that somewhere between the farmer and the consumer there is no combination or agreement to keep the prices up."

Philadelphia, Nov. 16.—Wholesale meat dealers declared today that there had been no decrease in the price of beef, and that there would not be any in the near future. Most of them emphasized this declaration by raising the price of beef 50 cents a hundred pounds to the retailers this morning. This, however, did not cause a corresponding increase to the consumers. The wholesalers are angry about the statements of the packers that the price of meat is going down, saying that it hurt their business, while the retailers are sore because their customers have demanded lower prices for meat, while they have to pay more for it than they did several weeks ago.

Pittsburg, Nov. 16.—The prices of fresh and smoked meats in Pittsburg today began a decline and this evening were from 10 to 20 per cent. lower than yesterday. Live hogs today sold in Pittsburg at $7.85, against $12 a short time ago.

Kansas City, Nov. 16.—Declines of 50 cents a hundred pounds in the prices of sheep, 15 to 25 cents in hogs and 15 to 25 cents in cattle took place at the stockyards today owing to moderately large receipts and general confidence that cheap corn will result in largely increased supplies of fat stock. Buyers for the packing houses were indifferent and bought no more than was needed for current orders.

Tobacco Crop Sold

For A Good Price.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 16.—At a meeting of the sales committee of the American Society of Equity of Hancock, McLean and Ohio counties, held Tuesday evening in this city, a deal was closed by which the pooled crop of 1910 for the three counties was sold to the American Tobacco Company, Imperial and C. E. Martin. The deal involves 7,000,000 pounds, and is one of the largest of the year. Prices are $9 to $4 for leaf and lugs, and $3 for trash.

MAN DISCUSSIONS

Second Session of State Executives, to Be Held in Kentucky, Will Debate Matters of Moment.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.
THE house of governors is about to hold another meeting. It will convene at the state capital, Frankfort, Ky., on Tuesday, Nov. 20, at 2 p. m., and will hold one session there. Early on the morning of Nov. 20 it will proceed by train to Louisville, where the continuing sessions, beginning on the morning of Nov. 20 and ending on the evening of Saturday, Dec. 2, will be held in a large room at the Hotel Seaboard. Invitations to this conference have been extended not only to the governors of the various states, but to the governors elect.

This will be the first conference of state executives held outside of Washington. It meets in Kentucky in honor of Governor Augustus E. Wilson, chairman of the executive committee, and hence virtual head of the body.

It is designed to hold future meetings at other state capitals, taking them in rotation, somewhat as the old-fashioned country schoolteacher boarded around or the circuit courts traveled from one county seat to another. Thus the house of governors will be a progressive body, at least in the sense that a certain kind of euche is called progressive.

Governors Elect to Attend.

There are forty-six governors of states and in the neighborhood of twenty governors elect who do not now hold the office, making a possible membership of more than sixty. Nearly all have indicated their intention to be present. It will be a mighty gathering, not so much for numbers as for the overpowering greatness there assembled. A governor is a big noise in this land of the free. Then think of the crash of sound when sixty of them are gathered together!

To entertain all that congregated importance will strain even the hospitalities of Kentucky. Probably if the Blue Grass State had her way the conference would be the annual of the balls, junkets and receptions. It would be a gala day for the Kentucky colonels and Henry Watterson would be in his element. But I am informed that the very best of authority that this is to be a meeting for business and not for festivities.

Perhaps the honorable governors will not frown on all the hospitalities extended them, but for the most part they will forego the allurements of Kentucky belles, even the enticements of the celebrated mint julep and devote themselves sternly to reading and listening to long winded papers by their own members. If a governor of North Carolina and the governor of South Carolina are both present there will be occasion to repeat the remark that made them famous.

If the coming conference carries out this program of renunciation it will confound the Washington Post, which once remarked that the business of governors could do little harm, since its functions would be largely social. I have it on the best of authority—the same authority as before, by the way—that the activities of the house of governors will be anything but academic and social. The authority is William George Jordan, the man who is presiding over the body and who is its present secretary.

Scorns the Presidency.

Jordan has said that he would rather have his present office than that of president of the United States. And it must be admitted that he did have an opportunity for service such as falls to the lot of few men. He was born in New York in 1864 and was collected in the State of New York. At the age of twenty he was editor of Book Chat and later of Current Literature. He then delivered lectures on a new system of education, which he called "mental training by analysis, law and analogy." He became managing editor of the Ladies' Home Journal in 1887 and a year later was made editor of the Saturday Evening Post. For six years he was editor and vice president of the Continental Publishing company. The next year was editor of the Searchlight.

In 1907 Jordan issued his pamphlet in advocacy of the formation of the house of governors, and immediately attracted attention and commendation throughout the land. One copy was sent to President Roosevelt, who soon after called a conference of governors on the subject of conservation. Two such meetings were held at the White House during Roosevelt's term, and at the last a committee of governors was formed to call another conference, which met in Washington last January. To this Jordan was invited as a guest, and soon after was elected secretary.

Responsibility Is Great.

In his new office it will be Jordan's opportunity to have some part in shaping the policy and outlining the work for this body in the future. The responsibility is heightened by the fact that this new chamber in the American scheme of government starts out de novo and has all its precedents to make. Thus we can witness before our very eyes the beginnings of an institution that may play an important part in coming years. We can do

AWAIT GOVERNORS

serve something of the processes through which the congress and other departments wrought themselves out after the adoption of the federal constitution when the nation was new.

In one aspect, however, this analogy does not hold good. The house of governors has nothing to do with the federal constitution. It concerns the states solely. In other words, it is meant to cover that "wildcat zone" between the federal power and the state power. It is a means by which the states can work in concert. It covers the whole wide latitude of powers reserved to the states which were the original sovereignties of the land. It can deal with all those questions which the constitution forbids congress to touch and yet which concern the whole country. It can bring the states into closer communion, show to them the best laws or methods arrived at in a given line by any one of their number, initiate amendments to the federal constitution and promote uniform legislation.

Sessions by Mail.

Among the things that Secretary Jordan has planned to do perhaps the most important is that of taking referendum votes of the governors at frequent intervals and on various propositions. Through this method the body will practically be in continuous session.

SECRETARY OF THE HOUSE OF GOVERNORS AND SOME OF THE STATE EXECUTIVES WHO WILL MEET IN KENTUCKY.

even though it holds but one actual meeting each year.

Another important undertaking of the secretary is that of getting out bulletins, each of them covering the activities of all the states in a given line. For example, the first bulletin relates to the popular election of senators. When he collected the information for this bulletin Mr. Jordan made the surprising discovery that, while twenty-nine of the states had petitioned congress for a constitutional amendment on this question, all but thirteen of the number had some defect in their petitions which would render them void.

It is probable that popular election of senators will be one of the subjects discussed at the coming meeting and that a uniform resolution will be framed which will avoid the defects or those previously passed by so many of the individual states. In this way it will be possible for the house of governors actually to initiate constitutional amendments.

The second bulletin will treat of the political parties adopted this year by the different parties in all of the states. Jordan has already gathered and tabulated the material for this bulletin. It will be invaluable as a barometer of public opinion. He has also written to the appropriate officials in the various states a series of questions relative to forestry and conservation. His circular letter on this subject contains one notable suggestion. It is in behalf of an interstate foresters' association. To the query as to whether or not this would be approved many favorable replies were received.

Preserve Governors' Messages.

Among other tabulistics contemplated is the tabulating and indexing the messages of the governors each year. There will also be one, or perhaps several, covering the last year's passing of the year by all the state legislatures. It should be explained in passing that the method of tabulation and indexing in these various bulletins is simplicity itself and renders them convenient for ready reference. For example, the party platform bulletin, under the head of conservation, gives the attitude of the different parties in the states relative to forestry, protection of natural resources and kindred topics. Many of the platforms are practically identical on a given policy. These can be lumped. Other platforms have novel or interesting suggestions worthy of particular notice. The bulletin thus becomes an index to the political thought of the nation. It is, or will be when published, a book not only to the governors, but to legislators, politicians, platform makers, students, newspapers and to the public generally.

In this connection I have to acknowledge the courtesy of Mr. Jordan in permitting me to look at this and other important material in advance of its publication; also for two delightful interviews, one at his home and one at the Authors' club of New York, of which he is a member.

Secretary Is Author.

Jordan is a bachelor and lives in a New York flat. He is the author of several books covering his ideas on education and other topics. One most refreshing thing about him is that he is a fundamental Democrat, imbued with the genius of Americanism and thoroughly believing in our dual system of government. He is not so much an advocate of state rights as he is of state duties. He is convinced that the states, through their isolation from each other, have neglected to do many of the things that could have been done to solve our problems as a people. He feels that the house of governors will act both as a stimulus to arouse the states to the importance of performing their full functions and as an avenue through which to perform these functions in the most efficient manner.

It will counterbalance and check centralization on the one hand and operate for union and solidarity on the other. It seems admirable from every possible viewpoint. Not a single vital objection has been urged against it. The inception of the house of governors was a happy hit, and the only strange thing is that no one thought of it sooner.

To Discuss Conservation.

While at this writing the program for the coming meeting has not been given out, it is understood that among the chief subjects to be discussed is conservation from the standpoint of the states, legislation against pollution of streams, which may be classed as conservation of human life, and the governors' powers and responsibilities. Under the last named head the power of removal of county and other officials will be considered, likewise the short ballot and appointment of the minor state officials or governor's cabinet.

On the subject of conservation it is rumored that Governor Norris of Montana will be asked to speak for the northwestern governors who got such short shrift at the St. Paul conservation convention and that some one will represent the other view of the question. The importance of conservation by the states may be realized when it is stated that four-fifths of our natural resources are already under private ownership. Over this the states alone can exercise control.

Among the governors elect it is rumored that Plained of Maine will be asked to deliver an address. While partisan politics is not allowed to intrude into the house of governors, these new recruits will bring in a strong reminder of the recent upheaval. There will be Wilson of New Jersey, Dix of New York, Governor of Pennsylvania, Osborne of Michigan, McGovern of Wisconsin, Aldrich of Nebraska, Baldwin of Connecticut, Johnson of California and many more. It will be a veritable ratification meeting—a convention of the victors. But, considering the amount of abuse that is heaped on the average governor, these prospective victims are surely entitled to get together and pat each other on the back.

VENETIAN WOMEN.

The Whims of Fashion Hold No Terrors For Them.

The women of Venice are absolutely free from the rule which Dame Fashion exercises over their sisters elsewhere. They care nothing for modes. With them the length of the skirt remains always the same, neither short nor long, and they always wear plainly made dark dresses, black stockings and the heaviest slippers of the east. Hats are unknown.

The universal outdoor wrap for all ages and all sizes is the black shawl, with a deep all-over fringe. It is folded with a short point above and a long one below, and sometimes it envelops the figure from head to foot. It is never fastened at the throat, and when it slips off it is gathered up with one outstretched arm, which makes the spectator think of a big bird stretching its wing.

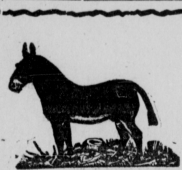

In their attire the women of Venice are independent, only wearing lace clothing, but with feminine inconsistencies they are thoroughly up to date in the matter of hairdressing, the style of their collars changing from time to time, according to the vogue of the moment in London and Paris.

Dyspepsia is our [national] ailment. Burdock Blood Bitters is the national cure for it. It strengthens stomach membranes, promotes flow of digestive juices, purifies the blood, builds you up.

Identified.

William M. Chase, the artist, was a picturesque figure, and was in clothes that had a certain originality, though they conformed more or less to the prevailing fashions. On one occasion Chase on his way home stopped at a little wine shop and ordered a jug of claret of a special brand sent to his house. The lad who brought it came to the front door an hour afterward when the artist had already arrived. "Some wine," he said curtly. The maid, knowing there was yet plenty in the cellar and believing the lad had made a mistake, said she was sure it was not for that house and did the boy remember the name of the man who ordered it. The boy didn't. "Then," said the servant, "you've come to the wrong place; we've never ordered wine!" At this moment the boy opened Chase's famous hat and laid the table. "Say," he asked, "don't that live here?" "Yes," said the amused maid. "Then," said the boy triumphantly, "here's where the wine belongs!"—Argonaut.

A Weary Celebrity.

When Mrs. Roger A. Pryor was a young woman living in Charlottesville, Va., visiting authors seldom reached the beautiful university town. "Thackeray, Dickens and Miss Martineau passed us by," says Mrs. Pryor in her book entitled "My Day—Reminiscences of a Long Life." But Frederick Bremer condescended to spend a night with her companion, Baron Schuler-Vass, of the university faculty, on her way to the south.

Schuler de Vence invited a choice company to spend the one evening Miss Bremer granted him. Her works were extremely popular with the university circle, and every one was on tiptoe of pleased anticipation.

While the waiting company eagerly expected her door opened—not for Miss Bremer, but for her companion, who announced:

"Miss Bremer, she beg excuse. She ver' tired and must sleep. If she come she gape in your nose."

Funerals in England.
At the time of Queen Victoria's funeral a writer in the Undertakers' Journal complained that, while royal burials were still conducted in an impressive manner, a sad lack of ceremonial distinguished the funerals of the nobility. "I mean after their time has abandoned, idea after idea has been dropped, each meaning a distinct loss to our business. An undertaker is the worst off, referring to the recent death of a noble lord, confided to me: 'Forty years ago I buried a member of that family, and the funeral bill came to £1,250 ($6,250). Ten years later I buried another, when it came to just over £700 ($3,500). Fifteen years ago I buried a third, at a cost of £250 ($1,250), but the bill for this one did not reach £75 ($375)."

Origin of a Famous Saying.
Euclid, who is sometimes called the father of mathematics, taught this subject in the famous school at Alexandria. Being asked one day by the king of Egypt whether he could teach him the science in a shorter way, Euclid answered in words that have been memorable ever since. "Sir, there is no royal road to learning." Not many scraps of conversation have lived, as this reply has, for 2,200 years.

IMPORTANT WORK OF THE HENDERSON ROUTE.

The Henderson Route is paving the way to some more gold mines in our county near Moxie. More than a half mile of siding and trestle has been built for the benefit of a large company that will open a big quarry at that point. They will put in a crusher of a 100 tons capacity per day. This company is now building houses for the accommodation of their employees. They hope to be ready by spring for business.

This is another instance where the Henderson Route is helping to build up the county by getting at the raw materials and putting them as a finished product on the market. The business of a railroad is to create, produce and transport the things in one community to where they are needed in another. This is commerce. It helps humanity and builds up communities.

Yes, some people are constantly knocking on the very best friend they have—the railroad. People never see the good of a railroad company, only note the bad without ever recognizing its benefits.

A great writer has truly said: "He who makes war on business removes the roof from homes, takes bread from mouths, leaves human bodies naked to the storms—replaces confidence with fear, hope with dread, love with hate—and robs men of their right to work."

Isn't that true? If our shops were to shut down for a day or a week, who suffers in the community? Not only the man in the overalls, but every man. So let us take a new line on our railroad and all our industries, give them a boost instead of a knock every day in the year.

READY FOR THE GROWERS.

The tobacco growers are being given a cordial reception at the Phelon factory this week. Mr. Phelon had a new office equipped in his building and made the old one into a nice hall for the farmers. The men will enjoy this room to gather in for a rest after their long journey to town with their wagons and teams. Mr. Phelon expects to have the largest tobacco business this season than any previous year. He has been here twelve years, and his dealings with every class of men have always been highly satisfactory. He is a splendid citizen in both town and country. After a dozen years of acquaintance with him, we are glad indeed to see him prosper.

MERCHANTS SHOULD GET BUSY.

This time next week the Thanksgiving turkey will have been warmed over, served cold, made into hash, and you will be taking your last bite of it. Then before you know it, Christmas will be right on your heels. Better get to work, if you don't, Santa Claus will fail to come. Get that ad ready for next week, see what you have in your stores that will appeal to the Christmas shoppers and call their attention through the News to the best goods you have. Suggest to people what to buy; help them to think. Shoppers would buy more if they knew what to get.

It is rumored that the shops of the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis Railway are to be moved from Cloverport to Irvington, the latter being the junction to the main line and the Irvington Branch.—Owensboro Inquirer.

If rumors were facts Cloverport would be on nettles all the time. With every change of the moon it is circulated, as far as it will go, that the Henderson Route shops will be moved from this city to Irvington. We are for Irvington; we want her to grow and gain, but along with our good works and wishes for her, we turn over this rumor and let the public know that moving the shops to Irvington is as probable as moving them to Cannellton, Ind. Our thriving, booming little neighbor might have shops of her own some day, but we shall keep ours. The Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis Railway Company is daily making new improvements—extensive and permanent—at their shops here. New electric lights are being installed all over the grounds, and busier days were never known at Cloverport's machine shops.

Scarcely a week passes that a houseboat does not tie up at Cloverport. Last week one was here three days, and Sunday night a perfect little palace drifted into shore for repairs. The owners say that all the way down the river men would tell them, "You can get your engine fixed at Cloverport." This is a bit of profitable advertising for the Cloverport Foundry. The people who come on these boats are pleasure seekers, but to hear them talk you wonder where they find their pleasure. Apparently they are people of wealth and leisure, and it is not so easy for them to cook, wash dishes and tinker with a gasoline engine. If they had to work so hard at home they would think life a living death. Still, we can understand why they leave their furnace-heated houses, their amusements and automobiles to take this trip South for we walked down the river bank Monday afternoon. Cold and bleak as it was, the river charmed us.

Andrew Carnegie will celebrate his birthday anniversary by making a gift of $3,500,000 to the Carnegie Technology Schools in Pittsburgh. Just think of being so rich that you can try the custom of celebrating birthday anniversaries backwards! And really find that it is better to give than to receive.

A handsome bath-tub has been placed in the Governor's office suite at Frankfort. Wouldn't it be excellent if folks could take mental baths as often as they say they do the physical, and gently wash away every thought of anguish? The plain old washbowl would hold enough water for the average mind.

It is welcome news to hear that we are to have more gas and that arrangements are on foot to open the new gas well on the West Side of the city. Gas is the greatest convenience the housekeeper can have. They need it in their cook stoves far more than the city does in her street lights.

Johnstone, a daring young aviator and the holder of the world's altitude record, dropped from his machine, a height of 500 feet, into the inclosure at Denver's aviation field last Thursday afternoon. He was broken to pieces. After all, there is nothing in a name.

Several hundred turkeys were delivered to Irvington last week for the Thanksgiving market. They are bringing 14 cents on foot, and will be shipped to the Eastern market. The crop in this county this year will not be as large as usual.

We miss Col. Roosevelt.

BY LOUISE

PLEASED STEPPING STONES

We heard one of the Plank Twins say once that when she mailed a letter that as soon as a train came, she rushed to the office expecting to get a letter, but even before her letter had time to get to its destination. Talk to the post-master and it can be learned that more than one half of the people who write letters expect answers this way. And for this reason it pays a business man to be extremely prompt in replying to all inquiries that Uncle Sam brings. Promptness is the shortest and sweetest way to success. Last summer when Mr. George Dean was here he said that the Monroe Refrigerator Company has a rule that every letter received must be given a reply in the first mail after that letter has been opened. This quickness is the most pleasing and successful business tactics any man or company can acquire.

"Don't be a promising young man," said one of our experienced friends the other day as he stood on the outside of our shop and talked to a good looking chap who cast his first vote Tuesday, two weeks ago. It almost took my breath for I had been brought up on the fact that "a promising young man" was the best sort of a fellow and I paused behind the door to see what the man was going to say next. He went on: "If you tell or promise anyone you are going to do a thing, do it or let them know you can't."

When you promise a letter, write it if you have it the time drop a post-card, if you say you are going to telephone a person—even your girl, put in your call. If you fail at that, send a note or wire.

Don't intimate, for even an intimation puts people in uncomfortable expectations. Then people can depend on you, and a dependable man is, of all men, the most satisfactory man in the world."

"Don't disappoint anyone," is the motto of the loveliest girl I ever knew. She is a social success, and if she were to start on a business career tomorrow she would have the first lesson well-learned.

The awfulness of Christmas is the making of a present to a person simply for the reason that you are expecting that person to give you one. There is no Christmas joy in such a gift.

One Thanksgiving we received a letter that I never shall forget and the more I think of it, the more I see the death of the writer's courage. It ran like this: "Please don't give me anything Christmas, and you all needn't expect anything from me because— I will think of you just the same. Won't you all think of me?"

"Just a thought of you" expresses the real Christmas sentiment and this is what is on the mothers that we are printing for the holiday season. These novelties are unique. We have received an order for 750. If you are interested in the creations from the heart of the press, write us. Don't EXPECT to write tomorrow, you have today.

A Mistake Somewhere.

"Is it true, Miss Gertie," he said, "that there are just two things a woman will jump at—a cushion and a mouse?"

"No," she answered; "there is a third, Mr. Phillips."

After thinking the matter over a few moments he tremblingly made her an offer, but she didn't jump at it. He was not the right man.

NEATNESS OF ATTIRE.

Cuffs For the Business Woman's Wear In Office.

Strange indeed is the business woman who does not like to wear dainty white and colored shirt waists to the office, but equally rare is the maiden with so large a bank account that the laundry is taught to her. It is for virtually every woman, therefore, that these various sorts of protecting cuffs for shirt waist sleeves have been devised.

There was one girl who had a pair of laced elasticated cuffs. They were all that could be desired—washable, cleanly and cool—until one day a careless maid dropped a match near her and there was almost an explosion.

Since then that girl has changed her cuffs to oilcloth, which is just as light, just as easily washed and just as attractive. While this oilcloth laced with ribbon or tape makes an ideal protecting cuff. Finish the lacing at the bottom with a loose bow and at the top with one of those toothed clasps used for children's napkins, which clasp the sleeve firmly without tearing it. Eyelets may be punched in the oilcloth. If you have access to a brass eyelet machine the effect will be neater, but an ordinary paper punch will serve you well.

For the girl who does not want to bother with blotting paper cut with an upward angle at the bottom around the arm and secured by three stout elastic bands making an excellent and speedy protection. It can be renewed daily, and white is advised because it shows dirt and dust immediately. The notch at the lower end is to provide freedom for the hands.

The girl whose tastes run to elaboration and ornamental effects will use herself a pair of puffed muslin over-sleeves, such as the children wear in school. White is best again, and there should be two pairs in service, one to be in use while the other is being laundered. But rubber at top and bottom holds the sleeves to the arms and catches them as shown in the drawing.

bandanna handkerchief is shown in the straight bordered cuff. A ten cent handkerchief is all that is needed for each of these attractive sleeve protectors. Fold down one corner of the handkerchief, cut off the opposite corner, sew the edges together in an oval and stitch on the rest cut off as a lapel on the other side. Fasten to the sleeves with a large safety pin.

A good idea for the woman whose work is so all dirty is a job for the lower part of the shirt waist that touches the desk or table. This bill should be of the same material as the cuffs, and a set of three would be appreciated by any business girl who wants to be dainty and present at the same time and at little expense.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

SHE WAS AGGRESSIVE.

Lucky For the Little Man Was Not Her Husband.

The lady of the office corner of the tramcar possessed a truculent air and a discolored eye. "Pussy thing any one can't take a young ride without ever getting glared at," she remarked, fixing a small gentleman wearing gray whiskers and a somewhat rusty top hat with her normal optic.

The small gentleman suddenly became interested in a soap advertisement.

"If any one can't have a black eye without Tom, Dick and Harry asking questions things are coming to a pretty pass," continued the lady.

Silence, allied with soap advertisement study, though eminently discreet, was ineffective.

"You're a talker," she said. The lady prodded the small gentleman's knee with her umbrella. "Bin settin' there this last ten minutes, you have, wouldn't if my 'bus' gives it to me. If it'll ease yer mind, 'e did. Is there anything else?"

"Madam," the small gentleman commenced, "I been your husband."

"I should 'a' got off at 'er cemetery with a wreath instead of 'goin' for the 'forepicks' of the young woman who got so tired of being called 'poor thing' because she received no invitations and had to eat all her meals at the eating house table that she took to eating alone once in awhile at a cheap restaurant and then brazenly lying about the friends who had invited her to dinner."

There was a young man in that house who never went anywhere else. The first night the girl stayed out of his desolation nearly overpowered him. "Even that poor little white-faced son has made friends who want her," he said. "Nobody wants me. I'm no good on earth."

Then on rare occasions his place at the table was vacant. "New friends?" asked the landlady.

"Yes," said the young man. One night the man and the girl met in a twenty-five cent restaurant. They blushed; they fenced; they finally confessed.

"We're a pair of frauds," said the girl. "It's awful to think that tonight when we go home we will have to swear that we have been dining with friends."

"Well," said the young man, "ain't we?"—New York Press.

The Guest Towel.

One of the prettiest designs in bed room towels seen for a long time is called the guest room towel. It is of soft damask, woven in a dainty scattered design of sweet peas, a deep border of the flowers appearing at the ends, which are hemstitched.

The size is 20 by 38 inches and the price 35 cents each.

A novelty in bath towels is a bleach of Turkish towel, with a red jacquard border that will not run in the washing, but will come from its tubbing and looking like new. It costs only 25 cents and measures 20 by 44 inches, a reasonable price.

The crossbar dimities and the self checked lawns are responsible for some of the daintiest looking pillow-slaves designed especially for summer use.

A rather large checked lawn, decorated with water lilies above a scalloped border, is thirty-two inches square and costs 85 cents. The scarf, 18 by 34, is the same price.

A second design is a grouping of daisies and hollyhocks set on above a pretty scroll pattern edge buttonhole, the material crossbar dimity. This is thirty-two inches square and costs 50 cents. The scarf is the same price.

Another pretty idea is a pillowslaw of fine dotted Swiss hemstitched to a wide border of sheer crossbar. Price 85 cents.

Cloveport Citizens Gladly Testify And Confidently Recommend Doan's Kidney Pills.

It is testimony like the following that has placed Doan's Kidney Pills so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voice in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Cloveport citizen:

Price: Graham, Railroad St., Cloveport, Ky., says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as a remedy that lives up to representations. For four years I suffered from disordered kidneys and the secretions from these organs were too frequent in passage, obliging me to rise several times during the night. Whenever I caught cold, it was sure to settle in my kidneys and greatly aggravate my trouble. My back ached severely and when I stopped I was seized by sharp twinges through my loins. The ache in my back at night greatly disturbed my rest and in the morning I arose feeling lame and sore. I was weary, nervous, the slightest work tired me and I often felt dull and languid. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Fisher's Drug Store, relieved me in a short time and it required but the contents of four boxes to effect a complete cure. I can state that this cure has proven permanent and it therefore gives me pleasure to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other persons afflicted in a similar manner."

CHANGING THE SUBJECT.

What Lincoln Said After Harvey Ended a Two Hours Talk.

The Hon. Peter Harvey, the friend and biographer of Daniel Webster, was a large man with a small voice and that pomposity of manner that many very different men possess. Above everything he valued and prized of himself upon his friendship with the "great expounder."

The first year of the war between the states he went to Washington and on his return was asked how he liked President Lincoln.

"Well," he said, "Mr. Lincoln is a very singular man. I went on to see him and told him that I had been an intimate personal friend of Daniel Webster; that I had talked with him so much on the affairs of the country that I felt perfectly confident I could tell him exactly what Mr. Webster would advise in the present crisis, and thereupon I talked to Lincoln for two solid hours, telling him just what he should do and what he should not do, and will you believe it, sir, when he got through all Mr. Lincoln said was, 'I caught his hand on my leg, Mr. Harvey, what a tremendous great cuff you have got!'"

Proof of Fairness.

A crowd developed on the countenance of the new patient as he studied the bill the physician had handed him. "What do you mean," he said, "by charging me $25 for a two weeks' treatment when you charged Henderson only $10 for a treatment extending over the same length of time?"

"If you mean that I am not impartial in my charges," retorted the bustling doctor, "I want you to distinctly understand that you have absolutely no foundation for your insinuation. I ordered Henderson to eat three square meals a day, while I forbade you to eat more than one light lunch. Now, sir, if you will add the cost of Henderson's meals to my charge of $10 and compare the result with the cost of your meals plus my charge of $25, you will obtain such proof of my equitableness that you, if you are a man, will humbly apologize to me for your unkind and unwarranted attack!"—Chicago News.

Failing a Fakir.

A story used to be told at Cairo of Sir Richard Owen during one of his sojourns in Egypt. The great naturalist was seated in the shade on the veranda at Sheppard's hotel. Now, the inevitable snake charmer came and produced from his bag a live specimen of the horned asp—the dead creature. The man charged with nothing daunted, stooped and plucked the horns from the head of the reptile wriggling at his feet, remarking to a bystander that the man would probably think twice before trying to palm off upon any one else a harmless snake as a cerastes by the aid of a couple of fish bones. With anybody else the charmer would probably have succeeded. He had tried it on the wrong man.

LITTLE RED SPOT.

If He Were Bigger This Spider Would Be a Real Pariah.

Strangely enough, the one really dangerous spider on the American continent is small, obscure and practically unknown to popular or journalistic eyes. Latrodectus mactans is its scientific name. It is about the size of a large pea, black with a red spot on the back—a useful danger signal—and spins a small web in out-of-the-way or around wood piles. So far as is known, its poison is the most virulent and powerful, drop for drop, secreted by any living creature. Cuba virus, in the minute quantity which the Latrodectus glands contain, would probably have no appreciable effect upon any living creature. Cuba virus, in the volume injected by the cobra's stroke, would slay a herd of elephants. Were this little known creature as large as the common black hunting spider of our gardens and lawns its bite would be almost invariably fatal. Happily the "red spot" fangs, being small and weak, can with difficulty penetrate the skin and are able to inject venom in dangerous quantity only when the bite is inflicted upon some tender skinned portion of the body. Nevertheless, the fatalities consequent upon the bite of this insect are sufficiently well attested to take rank as established scientific facts.—Samuel Hopkins Adams in Everybody's.

DELFT EMBROIDERY.

Smart Effects For Use In Summer Cottages.

Delft embroidery is new and is most attractive in its cool dullness of tone for the summer room. It is nearly all worked in dull blue of several shades upon a sort of coarse butters' linen so nearly white that it can scarcely be called cream.

All of these bags are faced with the lighter of the three shades of blue and drawn up with corresponding ribbons.

It must be remembered that the choice of color is as important a factor

TO HOLD DARNING.

In this work as is the design if the finished product is to resemble delft ware.

Varying but slightly in idea and general effect, the two bags show quite a different little Dutch figure, one of them knitting, the other sewing, and both of them done in a combination of stitches, including outline, solid, skeleton, cut stitch and laid work.

They are used to their best advantage in the carrying out of each part of the design, as are also the several shades of blue.

Delft figures similar to these are carried out in a whole line of art needlework, including larger bags for the family mending, laundry bags, bed-room hangings and couch cushions.

A prominent feature throughout the whole lot of this delft blue fancy work is the standing or seated figure of a woman knitting. She is characteristic of her country—a thrifty house-mother providing for her family by primitive means.

All of these figures are treated by that method known to the decorative artist, a method that outlines its most impressive parts with a single darker line. In this case it is accomplished by outlining.

One of the bags is intended for darning. It is for knitting, and like designs may be applied to all sizes of work bags or to many pieces of linen for use in the bedrooms of summer cottages.

GRAVEL ROAD CONSTRUCTION

Two Economical Methods Described by an Expert.

VERY LITTLE SAND NEEDED.

Screened Gravel Is the Most Suitable Material to Use—Winter Treatment Considered the Cheaper—Advice on the Mending of Highways.

Representative William W. Cocks of Long Island, who has built several gravel roads and has found them very satisfactory, tells how they can be constructed economically.

"To the minds of most people," he says, "when we speak of a gravel road comes the idea of coarse sand, such as they have seen dumped on the road from time to time and frequently in such quantities that it did not mix properly with the loam, and hence there was a soft, sandy road, which is the worst road in the world for hauling heavy loads over. What I mean by a gravel road is screened gravel or gravel that may be found in some banks that would be suitable for road construction without screening, but it should not contain over 10 per cent of sand in most instances unless one were to use a very thin coat and over a road that was of very deep loam, when it would be well enough to allow a little larger percentage of sand, but otherwise I prefer it to carry as little sand as possible."

"There are two methods in which this kind of road could be constructed. One is by the formation of a trench, treating it very much as we do a road for macadam and then putting in the gravel about eight inches deep mixed with a little loam or clay, and I believe that it would be wise to put some tar on the top course. In the construction of this road I would lay it in two courses, provided I were going to use tar in the upper course. There would be some difficulty in getting a gravel road to pack if it were laid in eight inches thick, and it should be done in the winter time unless one expects to haul a good deal of water and use a roller. By far the most economical way to build a gravel road is to spread about two inches on the ordinary surface of a road that has been previously cleared of all dead and worn out material that would never pack again, and then place the road and put the gravel on about three or four inches deep and just allow the traffic to work it in and have a man continuously along the road for two or three weeks with a rake to fill in the ruts and pick out any of the too large gravel stones, as the top surface should contain no stones larger than a hickory nut."

"Another method of constructing this kind of road would be to spread the gravel in the November or December. Spread it over the road about two or three inches deep and repeat during the winter as the traffic works it into the mud. I am assuming now that we have a road that would get muddy in the winter time and one that would have a clay loam bottom or a large percentage of loam. If we are to deal with a sandy road it will be necessary to use a considerable percentage of clay or loam with the sand prior to the spreading of the gravel. I have built quite a number of pieces of road in this manner by putting the gravel on during the winter, and they have been very satisfactory."

One of the greatest difficulties with a gravel road is in mending ruts. In my judgment, is that they endeavor to patch up the road instead of plowing it up and letting the whole mass settle at once. Some people have an idea that traffic will make a road level. Traffic will mash down some lumps and some of the coarse gravel, but if the material is not evenly spread or the road not properly graded when it is constructed it will grow worse—it will grow worse as time goes on. It is time well spent in the grading of a road to go over it innumerable times with a road machine in order that the grade may be made perfect in the beginning, and I know of a great many roads in Nassau and Suffolk counties, N. Y., which, if they were not now up and have a little sand put in some places and a little loam in others, then be thoroughly graded with a road machine and hit with a little gravel added during the winter, would be good all the year round for wagons or automobiles, and if they were oiled they could be rendered just as dust proof as a macadam road."
